

REBELS' ADVANCE IS 35 MILES FROM SPANISH CAPITAL

If Water Supply is Cut Off,
Capitulation of Capital
Is Certain

EIGHT MILES FROM SUCH

Charge by Fascists Puts Whites
Step Nearer Madrid's
Capture

(Editor's Note: Further rebel advances on the Madrid front, threatening the capital's water supply, are reported today by H. R. Knickerbocker, but the noted correspondent says that an early end to the Spanish Civil War is unlikely. While the rebels still control two-thirds of Spain, the position on the whole is unchanged, he finds in a survey from the insurgent headquarters, although terrorism on both sides is increasing.)

NORTHERN SPANISH REBEL ARMY HEADQUARTERS, BURGOS, Aug. 3.—(INS)—Striking to within eight miles of the source of Red Madrid's water supply, the white column from Somo Sierra today captured Lozoyuela, four miles beyond Buitrago, thus placing the spearhead of the rebels' advance 35 miles from the capital.

Eight miles west of Lozoyuela is Lozoya, the principal source of Madrid's water, which, if cut off, means capitulation of the capital.

A bayonet charge by a phalanx of Fascists earlier drove the last remnants of red troops from the village of Guadarema and put the whites a step nearer to the actual capture of Madrid.

The whites took plenty of property, but far more important is the capture of five armored cars, which is one species of armament that they lacked. Today, in the third week of the Spanish army revolution, the more than two-thirds of Spain is in revolt. The Madrid troops, or the reds, are on the defensive. The capital itself, is bitterly but not wholly defended. Some perspective can be gotten from Burgos, the capital of General Miguel Caballero's military government, and after the experience of a fortnight ago, it is the worst battle since the Bolshevik revolution.

First the Spanish army, published theoretically 280,000, but probably not having more than 200, almost all went over to the rebel side, led by General Francisco Franco, in Morocco, and General Emilio Mola, in the north.

Incidentally the white government has just announced that Captain Moreno Fernandez is now chief of the whites.

ETHIOPIA MAY SOON BE ITALIAN "KLONDIKE"

State Mining Company Established to Seek Gold in Conquered Land

TO MINE PLATINUM, TOO

By Lindsey Parrott
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

ROME, Aug. 3.—(INS)—Italy has set up machinery to exploit the mineral wealth supposed to lie beneath the barren hills of Ethiopia over which Marshal Badoglio's armies toiled.

A recent decree, approved by the Chamber of Deputies, established a State Mining Company for East Africa, empowered not only to operate the mines of Eritrea, Somaliland and Ethiopia.

According to an official survey published here, gold, hard coal, tin and platinum probably will be its first objectives in Ethiopia.

The Tigre, where Ras Seyum never permitted private prospecting, is said to be rich in the yellow metal, particularly in the Uollega district. Platinum, says Italian sources, has come to light in the Yubdo district.

Important tin deposits exist near Harrar and the Tana zone has veins of hard coal, a mineral badly needed by Italy to cut her foreign imports and make her the nearly self-supporting state which is one of Mussolini's goals.

Meanwhile figures have been published here aimed to show the progress Italy has made in gold mining in her colony of Eritrea, along the shores of the Red Sea.

Astronomical and fantastic though the figure sounds the gold yield of Eritrea has increased 5000 per cent since 1931, according to the statistics published here and the little colony, with less than 5,000 white residents, now ranks forty-second in world gold production.

In 1931, Eritrea produced just two kilograms of gold. In 1934 the figure was 200 kilograms—roughly $250,000 worth of the precious metal. In the first seven months of 1935, 111 kilograms were dug out of the ground.

The yield is encouraging here, for it is taken in part as answering the frequently asked question, what is Italy going to do with Abyssinia? If gold in profitable commercial quantities exists in Eritrea, it is argued, the same must be true of adjoining Ethiopia lands, for the country is exactly similar. And the success of Italy in mining gold in her present colony should prove her ability to produce results in the new regions she now has conquered.

By the same argument, Italy may expect to find quantities of other mineral wealth in Ethiopia, it is declared here. Eritrea contains, in workable quantities, iron, lead, mercury and mica. Somaliland, bordering on Ethiopia in the South, has fairly large deposits of manganese, iron sand, potassium and sodium.

Falling Pipe Strikes
Man As He Awaits Train

While standing on the platform of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Cornwells Heights last evening Thomas Essey, 24, 118 W. Westmoreland street, Philadelphia, was struck by a falling piece of copper pipe and very seriously injured.

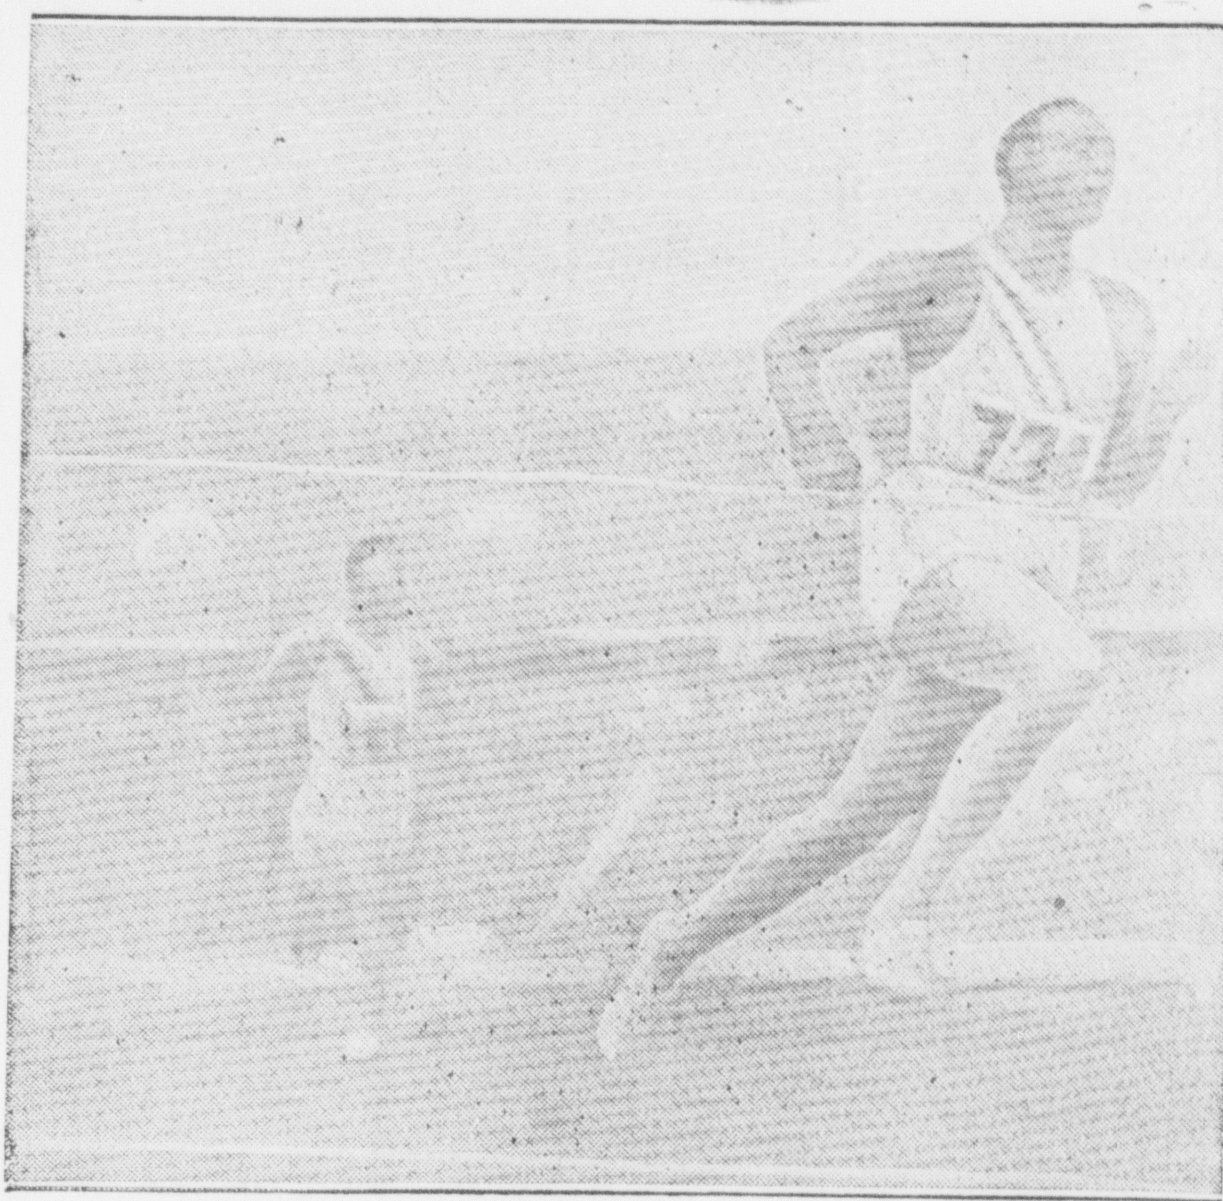

It is said that Essey was waiting for a train to go into Philadelphia when the copper pipe was loosened from the overhead high tension line by a passing train, striking him in the abdomen as it fell.

Essey was admitted to the Harriman Hospital where he was taken by the Bucks County Rescue Squad. Hospital authorities say that his condition is very serious. He has regained consciousness only at short intervals.

NEW HOPE FIREMEN HOUSE NEW APPARATUS

Eagle Fire Company Has Parade As A Feature
Of the Ceremonies

IN THEIR NEW UNIFORMS

NEW HOPE, Aug. 3.—Members of the Eagle Fire Company, Friday night, housed their new apparatus with a fitting program. Attired in their newly purchased uniforms which included white pants, shoes and hats, maroon shirts and cream colored ties, the firemen made a fine showing.

Housing of the apparatus took place following a parade which formed at the fire house and proceeded to Bridge street and then to the cannon on Ferry street. From there the parade proceeded to Mechanic street, south over Stockton avenue, Mechanic street, to the Scheetz bridge, south on New street and north on Main to the upper end of the borough, from which point there was a counter march to the fire house.

The engine was formally presented to the Eagle Fire Company by a foreman of one of the fire companies in Lambertville, and it was accepted by Albert Hambleton, foreman of the local organization. The new pump was christened by Miss Virginia Schermerhorne.

After several brief remarks refreshments were served by the ladies' auxiliary at Brown's mill.

Eight companies were invited to take part in the parade. They included Union, Hibernia, Columbia and the Fleetwing Hook and Ladder Company, all of Lambertville; Midway at Lahaska, Stockton, Wycombe and Plumsteadville.

Seven Killed in Auto Crashes

Automobile accidents claimed the lives of seven persons on highways and streets of Pennsylvania over the weekend, an International News Service survey showed today. Most of the victims were in the Philadelphia area.

Eastern Pennsylvania, and the Philadelphia metropolitan area experienced the worst traffic fatalities since September, 1935.

Mrs. Marie Phillips, 56, was killed when she was struck by an automobile while crossing the street in Philadelphia. Mrs. Anna McDevitt, 36, was killed by a flying bumperette, hurled into the air after a three-car collision, and Percy Roncibione, 19, was thrown through the windshield as his car overturned in another crash.

John Burns, 60, of Philadelphia, died in a hospital from internal injuries received Saturday night. Two other Pennsylvanians, Frank K. Patterson, 19, of St. David, son of a prominent Philadelphia insurance man, and his companion, Franklin A. Ott, also of St. David, were killed in a head-on collision near Havre-de-Grace, Md., while returning home.

Edgar Weist, 23, of Harrisburg, was fatally injured and five other persons hurt, two of them seriously, in a collision of a truck and an automobile on the River Road, north of Harrisburg. All the occupants of the truck were negroes from Patapsco Park, Maryland.

Helen Gandy, 31, of Morgantown, was killed when her car crashed head-on near Canonsburg. Mrs. Mary Kahle, 49, of Oil City, was killed in an accident in Mercer county.

SOLEBURY AND NEW HOPE REPUBLICANS TO MERGE

To Name Officers and Appoint Committees at Meeting To Be Held Tonight

PLAN OUTING, AUG. 29TH

Republicans of New Hope and Solebury have decided to join forces during the campaign. This decision was reached at a meeting held recently in the club house of the Solebury group.

Tonight a meeting is to be held at which time officers and members of the executive committees are to be named from the membership of the two organizations. The meeting tonight will be held on the lawn of the residence of Dr. Magill, North Main street, New Hope.

The two clubs united last Fall in staging a big rally in Ely's grove and it was such a success that sentiment has grown for the consolidation of the two groups.

The Solebury organization appointed a committee composed of Thomas Keenan, Edward Brown and Gordon Cooper to meet with representatives of the New Hope club and to make a formal offer of consolidation. These

LANDRETH'S SEEDS BEAT CAPE MAY COLLEGIANS

Bristol Nine Beats New Jersey
Team by Score of 6 to 4

A TEN-INNING BATTLE

Playing at Cape May Saturday the Landreth Seeds subdued the Cape May Collegians in a ten inning game 6-4.

The Collegians scored all their runs in the opening inning before the game was hardly started. Praul struck out the first batter and then Tonlin hit to left for two bases and was caught at third on Smith's tap to the Seeds pitcher, Batten, Galley and Bristow hit singles and "Al" Pitko allowed Taylor's fly to get away and in all four runs counted before Snyder rolled to Praul ending the scoring.

The "Farmers" came within a run of tying the game in the second inning. Hill opened with a single to left and Broderick flied to Smith. Heftman's two-base smack to centre counted Hill and Roe's two bases to left brought in Heftman. Another run scored on Bruce's hit to centre, making the score read 4-3. Hill's two base hit to right field and Broderick's hit down the third base line tied the score for the Landrethmen in the fifth.

But twenty-nine men faced Praul after the first inning and he coasted along allowing but four scattered hits. Riley who pitched for Cape May had trouble keeping the "Farmers" off the base paths but was generally effective when his meant runs, the result being that twelve were stranded—one or more in every inning but the first. Warren Bruce hit safely the first two times he faced Riley and walked three times thereafter but failed to score. After Roe grounded out to start the tenth inning, Bruce received his third base on balls, but was forced at second on Praul's roller to Smith to Dallas—the latter having replaced Bristow in the field—who tried for a double play, the throw to first went wild and Praul pulled up at second base. Barrett connected for a two base hit to right centre and Praul scampered over with the deciding counter, Malmbsbury beat out a hit to short field, Galley making a bad throw, allowed the runner second and Barrett.

RUTH WHITLEY BECOMES WIFE OF WM. E. ERVIN

The Rev. Arthur S. Sargis
Officiates at a Church
Ceremony, Eddington

TO LIVE IN EDDINGTON

EDDINGTON, Aug. 3.—A wedding took place here yesterday afternoon in the Eddington Presbyterian Church at four o'clock when Miss Ruth Whitley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Whitley, Eddington, became the bride of William E. Ervin, Cornwells Heights. The Rev. Arthur S. Sargis performed the ceremony. The church auditorium was filled to capacity.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was dressed in a white imported lace dress, with a cap veil ending in a long train, and she wore a coronet of pearls. The dress, which was form-fitting, was cut high at the neck-line, and had long, close-fitting sleeves. The bride wore white pumps and carried a bouquet of white gardenias.

The maid of honor, Miss Ruth Fechttenburg, Eddington, was attired in a peach satin dress of mousseline de soie. She wore blue shoes and her hat, which was of the picture model, was of gold. She carried a bouquet of tallsmen roses.

The bridesmaids were Evelyn Diamond, Cornwells Heights, and Gladys Clemence, Radnor, a cousin of the groom. Miss Diamond was dressed in green and Miss Clemence was attired in pink.

The best man was Stanley Vansant, Bensalem. He, as well as the other men acting as ushers, was attired in white flannels with blue serge coat. The men each wore a white rose. The ushers were Charles Scott, Cornwells Heights, and Fred Adams, Philadelphia, a cousin of the bride.

The organist was Miss Evelyn Fechttenburg, Eddington. She also accompanied Elmer Vansant at the piano when he sang "Oh Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly." The organist played Lohengrin's "Bridal March" as the processional and the recessional was the wedding march from "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

A reception was held at the bride's home following the ceremony, with relatives and close friends in attendance.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of Bensalem high school, and Mr. Ervin is also a graduate of Peirce's Business College, Philadelphia. The groom is employed at the Badenhausen plant, Cornwells Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin left last evening for a week's motor trip to Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside in an apartment in the home of the bride's mother.

Marion Davies, in her latest Cosmopolitan production, "Hearts Divided," a First National release with a romantic historical background, opens at the Grand Theatre today for two days. The picture is said to have been produced on a lavish scale with beautiful sets and colorful settings. The scenes are laid largely in the historical Patterson mansion of Baltimore and its spacious grounds, but there are also sequences in Washington, an outlying race track, and in the palace of Emperor Napoleon of France.

Dick Powell, who has the leading masculine role, also sings songs specially written for the production by Harry Warren and Al Dubin, in one of which he is joined by Miss Davies. Other music is furnished in the form of spirituals sung by the famous Hall Johnson Choir, representing slaves in their quarters on the Patterson estate.

Several historical characters are seen in the film, including Napoleon Bonaparte, Cambraceros, second consul of France, Jerome Bonaparte, brother of the emperor, President Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe, John Marshall, Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr.

MAN KILLED, FOUR SERIOUSLY HURT, SUNDAY CRASHES

Albert Thomas, Jr., Philadelphia, is Victim in Motor Accident

WALKING ALONG ROAD

Two Severe Crashes Occur
During the Night in Lower
Bucks County

One man was killed and four injured, one seriously, in two automobile accidents in this section early this morning and late last night.

Dead:
Albert Thomas, Jr., 3359 N. American street, Philadelphia.

Injured:

Mrs. Mary Motz, 63, 2816 N. Mascher street, Philadelphia; contusion of left hand, lacerations of forehead, and contusion of left leg. Still in Harriman Hospital.

Mrs. E. Quireones, 3675 Broadway, New York City, abrasions on both legs. Discharged.

Mrs. J. Riera, 445, West Bronx, New York, treated for brush burns and bruises, seven stitches taken in arm. Discharged.

Charles Falkenstein and Albert Thomas were said to have been walking along the Lincoln Highway, about one-half mile east of City Line, when they were struck by a car driven by Bertrand Mabey, 5329 Delancey street, Philadelphia. Thomas was dead when admitted to the Harriman Hospital and Falkenstein is still unconscious. The accident occurred shortly before two a. m. The Bucks County Rescue Squad brought the victims to the hospital.

Mrs. Mary Motz received contusions and lacerations when a car in which she was riding with her sister, and driven by her nephew, John Gorman, 1808 E. Letterly street, Philadelphia, sideswiped a car at Oxford Valley late last evening. It is said that Gorman was passing another car when the accident occurred. Gorman and the sister were uninjured.

The second car in the accident, going toward New York, was driven by Mrs. E. Quireones. She was injured as well as her companion, Mrs. J. Riera, but both were later discharged from the Harriman Hospital where they were taken by the Bucks County Rescue Squad. Gorman is being held by the authorities pending a further investigation into the accident.

AUGUST IN THE COUNTRY

Above the almost imperceptible hum of the season the locust is languorously buzzing. It is August. The ecstasy has gone out of things. The fledglings in one late nest of chipping sparrows keep up an intermittent chatter in the syringa bush under the window. But most of the neighborhood birds are foot-loose again. Bobolinks and orioles have been silent so long that you can hardly remember how gloriously they sang in May and June. But the song sparrow still keeps up its spirits, the Maryland yellowthroat still prattles of witcheries in the raspberry patch and sometimes the catbird has something sententious to say. Now that the swallows are hatched they are perching in long, contemplative rows on the telegraph wires. The blue jay, who kept mighty quiet while his children were young, is beginning to trumpet and bluster again. In the morning and evening the blue-bird recovers his contralto warble of good-will.

The haze is fairly constant over the mountains, turning every view into a landscape, and lurks deep and blue in the valleys. In fields where the hay is still uncut, goldenrod, Queen Anne's lace and St. Johnswort begin to take full charge. The sun is a living ball of fire. If you cross a mown field the heat ripples up all around you; close your eyes and you have a sensation of rising. But it is cool and moist in the woods, and it is tranquil under the hemlocks. Where the sun leaks through the canopy of spires and branches it falls to the soft ground in pools of bluish light. For the light in hemlock groves is filtered; the glare and blaze are removed.

Any one can understand that it is unnatural to work in such weather. Nature is making little effort now. There is no longer a sense of expectancy. All during the day there are long interludes of silence. The throb of a motor straining on the hill, the purr of a mowing-machine, a threatening "ho" flung at the horses in the hayfield a mile away, a dog's bark in some sleepy dooryard are the only variations in the great symphony of quiet. Even the locust is no more than the season's overtone.

INCognito

Clark Gable is presently to start on a tour of the principal American cities, traveling incognito. This announcement is made early, so that every one will hear it, and will be made repeatedly hereafter, so that no one can forget it.

With interest thus drummed up, Mr. Gable will arrive in due time, and will be met by huge crowds who will pick him out instantly as the man who swears his name is John Doe, and who is trying noisily and energetically to hide. The purpose of the incognito will thus have been perfectly realized.

Strange are the devices of publicity but, strange as they are, motion picture stars have mastered them. "With one's identity concealed," ran the old definition for incognito. The new definition might read: "With one's identity emphasized by an obvious pretense of concealment, to insure against all chance of being mistaken for any one else."

Government by the people is pretty safe. A crazy scheme to benefit one crowd always hurts a bigger crowd that blocks it.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Jan. 28, 1875. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

George Silbert, the former occupant of the Cottage Hotel, purchased on Tuesday, of Mr. Pugh Duncan, that property for the sum of $10,000, and will occupy it on the first day of April next.

The members of St. Mark's Church of Bristol, organized a temperance society on Monday night. Forty-seven members signed the pledge, and it is expected that before the advent of Spring there will be at least 100 names added to the society.

On Monday evening, February 1, a night school is to be commenced in the second story room of Washington hall, for the purpose of teaching the simplest English branches to those persons who are unable to attend the day schools. All such are invited to be there at seven o'clock.

Early yesterday morning, Thomas Sleeper of the firm of Sleeper, Wells & Aldrich, of Burlington, N. J., was found by Thomas Mann, a workman employed in Harkins' foundry, lying on the ice between Burlington and Bristol in an insensible condition. It is supposed that he arrived in Bristol by a late New York train, and in attempting to get home stumbled and fell. His head was badly cut. He was taken to Burlington and hopes are entertained for his recovery.

The old Keystone forge has been leased for six months to parties in the city, who will occupy it for the purpose of making flue iron for tubular boilers. If the enterprise promises success at the end of six months, a longer lease will likely be effected.

George Robinson, the rigger employed at the erection of the Water Company's standpipe, had his ribs crushed at Camden one day last week, while engaged in taking down a pole.

At the meeting of the board of county commissioners on Monday, the 18th instant, they awarded the contract for building a Cowin bridge, 58 feet span, over the canal at Yardleyville, where Letchworth avenue crosses it, to Joseph G. Preston, whose bid was the lowest—$1,352.

The annual meeting of the Cottage Building & Loan Association was held last Monday evening at the town hall. The fourth annual statement was submitted and showed that during the year $13,100 was invested in loans. The total assets of the company amount to $18,788.61, and the stock is valued at $91 per share. At the election of officers, Joshua Peirce was chosen president, Samuel Swain, secretary; C. T. Irwell, treasurer, and H. M. Wright, J. V. Foster, Charles Bruden, Joseph B. Bailey, C. W. Peirce, Jr., B. C. Foster and Jonathan Milnor, directors.

The evident indisposition of the directors of the Water Company to furnish the borough with water for fire protection at a reasonable price has compelled property holders in the more exposed portions of the town, to seek some other means of relief. Citizens residing on Washington street have therefore subscribed largely to a fund to put in pipes and water-plugs for the protection of their own immediate neighborhood. The pipes will lead through Washington to Wood, and a fire plug will be placed at the corner of Pond and Washington and another at the corner of Wood and Washington. The water will be furnished by Messrs. C. W. and J. Peirce without charge. The pumps in their mills have a capacity of 10,000 gallons per minute, and the supply of water is said to be inexhaustible. The subscription to the fund provides that if the Water Company agrees to put in plugs at a reasonable price, before the ground is in condition to lay the pipes, the contemplated action will not be taken.

WARMINSTER—On Sunday, the 17th, as John Heritage and wife, of Warminster, were about starting to church, their horse took fright, ran away, upsetting the carriage. Mr. and Mrs. Heritage were both much bruised, but it is thought not seriously.

YARDLEYVILLE—W. H. Shiveley, Esq., late editor and proprietor of the "Luminary," died Thursday evening of consumption, after a lingering and suffering period. His remains were interred, by his request, in Friends' ground at Fallsington, on Sunday afternoon.

We were shocked to learn on Monday morning, that a large man was lying dead in a field opposite Squire Eastburn's coal wharf. A telegram was immediately sent to coroner Closson, Bristol, who came up, summoned a jury, called upon Dr. Livezey to accompany him as examining physician, and proceeded to investigate the case.

HULMEVILLE

The infant daughter of Walter and Anna Brown Bilger was baptized Saturday evening by the Rev. T. William Smith, at the Bilger home. The child was named Marian Leona.

"KING OF HEARTS"

BY EDNA ROBB WEBSTER

CHAPTER XXXV

At first, when Jack betrayed his deep personal concern for Lynn, Doti was angered. The feminine demented fear of losing her man gripped her, and her thoughts fiercely renounced her cousin. No one ever had denied Doti what she wanted, and this first suggestion of competition aroused her defense. She thought scathingly: Lynn would not accept her offer of financial assistance, the shelter of her home, the prestige of her influence for obtaining a position—but she would take away her most valuable possession, like a thief in the night!

Then she blushed with secret remorse. Actually, she did not believe that Lynn had stolen Jack's love from her. She had gone so quietly and unobtrusively away—it was not fair to accuse her like that. But he had followed her so soon, and so eagerly. How did she know how much Lynn had influenced that trip north? Then reason assured her, but he never even found her! Had Lynn lured him to her city, she certainly would have been there to greet him! No, if Jack had gone in search of Lynn, he had done so, voluntarily.

But as her first anger toward her cousin subsided, Doti was piqued at Jack's desertion. All their lives, the fact had been inferred and accepted that she would marry him, and they would prolong the name and fortune of Merckon & Thorpe, together.

The idea had been so fixed that she felt lost at the mere suggestion of any other arrangement. Their families expected it, their friends, all the southern city expected it—even those who did not know them except by the linking of their prominent names. What chagrin would be hers, if Jack jilted her!

As the days lapsed into weeks after Jack's return home, he continued to see Doti less. The demands of business in his father's absence from the office, was his continual explanation. But he grew irritable, and though his healthy color returned with the vigor of the tropical sun, his haggard expression did not disappear. And Doti knew that the pressure of business cares did not warrant that. Her father had not grown haggard, even if economic conditions were difficult.

They went about together, but the old camaraderie had disappeared, somehow. Jack no longer ventured casual little intimacies which had seemed as natural as their childhood affections. Doti felt his remoteness, even when they dined together; felt his thoughts detached, even while he talked with her.

Gradually, she saw him less. Finally, there was an entire week when she did not see him at all. And her surprise and dismay, Doti discovered that she sorely had missed him. She had grown so accustomed to his presence that his absence was more like that of her father or mother. She missed him, and thought of him, but only with the assurance that she would see him soon. Her days and evenings were filled with delightful pleasures. There was always a gallant escort to fill Jack's place, and that place was being filled more frequently of late by one Avery Dillon, who was a novelty for her instead of a habit.

With a shock which was a mixture of regret and relief, Doti realized that was exactly what Jack's son Thorpe had become to her—a habit. So long as she had him, she accepted him without consideration. When she first lost him, she was a little bewildered and frightened. But when she no longer missed him, she recognized that he had not been even necessary to her happiness.

It was soon after this discovery that she received the apologetic note from Lynn. Her first reaction was joy that Lynn was safe and happy, as Jack's fears and discoveries had indicated she was not. Doti was genuinely fond of Lynn, and could not have denied it even if Lynn had taken that from her which she treasured. Besides, Lynn had not done that at all. If Jack loved her, so much the nicer for Lynn. That might bring her back here to live where she belonged, among her own people.

Still wondering at her own recent awakening, Doti telephoned to Jack. She could not resist a preliminary taunt, however. She deplored with a pout, "Have you forgotten all about me?"

"Not at all," he assured her readily, but even then she could visualize the polite mask of his face as he tried to revive the old ardor. "I've only been frightfully busy."

"Business must be very good," she suggested with a roguish smile to herself.

"Rather—very bad—" but he checked himself abruptly. Southern gentlemen never carried home their business problems to their womenfolk, never permitted them to suspect their own problems. What was the matter with him, anyhow?

"How about coming out to dinner this evening?"

"Er—I'm sorry, Doti—but I don't think I can make it."

"Then I'll call dad and—could him for making you work so hard. He will bring you to dinner, if you won't come for me."

He said hastily, "Please don't think I don't want to see you, Doti. I'll try to make it. Perhaps I can," resignedly.

"Well, you'd better!" she threatened, and chuckled with delight as she cradled the telephone and glanced at Lynn's letter in her hand. During the afternoon, Jack's thoughts were less occupied with business and more concerned with his personal problem. He was beginning to feel desperate about Lynn. Just as soon as his work permitted, he was going north again to search for her more thoroughly. He did not know what more could be done, but he must find some way to locate missing persons, with all the intricate systems of modern records and files.

But the other angle of the situation disturbed him quite as much. That was Doti. His undefinable obligation to her deserved some honor. But it was as baffling a problem as the finding of Lynn. There were her father and his own to be considered, also. What could he say to them—who had expected their family alliance, had counted on it ever since their two babies waved fat fists at each other from their cribs? The proportions of the dilemma staggered him. Why couldn't a man's own life belong to himself, anyway? What were ambition and success and everything else in the world, if you had to sacrifice that which you wanted most—the woman you loved?

As evening approached, Jack resolved to confess the situation to Doti, with what consideration he might offer, and appeal to her own reason. He supposed that she loved him, always had taken it for granted. Perhaps she did. But he was not even sure about that. Yes, it was better to have it out with Doti—for better or worse. He drove to the Merckon's for dinner, with some measure of anticipation, doubtful as it might be.

His pleasure at seeing Doti after so long a separation, puzzled him a little. But she did not disturb him in the least. It must be because she looked so lovely in the rose chiffon gown and she had been so much a part of all his life that he had missed her as naturally as he missed any member of his family. He felt guilty with the thought, as he greeted her with the customary kiss.

"I have a surprise for you," she told him, and he remembered how she had said that so often to him as a child, and then displayed some new treasure for his admiration.

"Not another new car?" he guessed, for in the later years, the treasures had grown in proportion.

"No," she laughed, and held Lynn's letter toward him.

He took it skeptically, at first, saw the postmark, opened it eagerly. His dark eyes swept the page to the signature—Lynn's own, and he looked at Doti with such exultation in his face that she almost cried out with the revelation of his relief. Could it be possible that Jack loved Lynn so much as that? She was a little awed with the immensity of that which had been denied to her.

"Where is she?" his voice was harsh with anxiety.

"At the same place," her own was a little breathless.

"Are you sure?" he asked doubtfully, and glanced at the note.

"Read it," she urged.

The silence was strained for a few minutes.

"Well," he said finally, as if he had reached the end of a road which stopped abruptly over a chasm and he was deliberating what to do.

Doti's laugh was forced, and she said abruptly, "You love her, don't you, Jack?"

His eyes questioned hers with astonishment. "How—did you know?"

"You have told me in thousand ways. You must go after her, and bring her down here to live with us all."

"And you don't—mind?" he hesitated.

"Not any more," she confessed. "At first—well, it was quite a blow. And I came to my senses, finally. And I discovered that I don't love you, either. Jack, though I'm terribly fond of you and I don't know what I should do if I didn't see you often—"

"Why—Doti, dear—I'm so glad you've no idea how miserable I've been, hating to hurt you—say! I stopped to look at my wrist, 'what time is it?' I can still make that night plane north if I run for it—Doti, will you excuse me, tonight, and explain to your family—?"

"Run along—" her hands pushed him toward the door with generous impulse, "and good luck to you. Kiss Lynn for me."

He turned back and took her into his arms gently, gazed down into her upturned face for a moment. "Doti—you're sweet!" he declared, and kissed her.

A moment later, his car roared down the drive and Doti turned away from the door with misty eyes. He had gone from her, definitely and forever.

TEN FINE BOUTS ON ST. ANN'S CARD TONIGHT

A fine card of 10 bouts has been arranged for the boxing fans of this vicinity tonight in the St. Ann's outdoor arena. Wood and Franklin streets, in the bi-monthly amateur boxing show sponsored by the St. Ann's Athletic Association and sanctioned by the Middle Atlantic district of the A. A. U.

In the wind-up of the card, two men weighing over two hundred pounds will clash, Eugene Murray, of the Arena Club, meeting Jole Schofield, East Side. Both of these boys pack a terrific punch in their gloves and it is almost certain that before the going sounds for the third round, one of the combatants will be lying on his back, taking a count.

Two St. Ann's colored light-heavies are also on the card. Harry Davis fights Milton Hines, Arena and Sylvester Purnell tackling Henry Robbins. Davis has been beaten three times since he started amateur punching throwing. He is in the top-notch class and does not fear the crown-holder Frank Donofrio whom he fought twice, losing on close decisions each time. Purnell has won one and lost one as a St. Ann's fighter.

Vince Della, local slugging south-paw, fights a tough opponent in Benny Lamonica, Mason. Lamonica recently represented the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. in an inter-city match between Philadelphia and New York. He defeated his foe. Della scored his most important victory of his career in the last show when he dropped Morris Bracey twice to take the decision in three rounds.

Revenge will be the goal of Tally Sciarra in his bout with Jimmy Daniels, Arena. Daniels beat Tally last Thursday night in the Philadelphia Arena, although the Bristolian rallied in the final session and floored his foe but the early lead was too much to overcome.

Two other St. Ann's gloves are scheduled to box. Angelo "Marshall" Mocerio who gave that wonderful exhibition in the last show, meets Jack Porter, Kensington, and Willie Leighton, Rescue Squad, fights Pete Tal-lirida, Mason. Leighton is out to make it six straight home victories. Tal-lirida gave Tony Maglione his hardest battle and is out to stop the localites' winning record.

In the other bouts scheduled, Johnny Porter, brother of Tommy Forte, A. A. U. champion who turned pro, is scheduled to appear against Al Neary, Kensington. Benny Arriazzo, Mezone, meets Willie McClay, Kensington. Frankie Sullick, Kensington, and Willie Higgins, Arena, are the mittmen in the tenth bout.

The first bout will go on at 8:30 o'clock sharp.

HOLMESBURG DEFEATS LANDRETH NINE HERE

Landreth's Seeds lost to Holmesburg yesterday at Landreth Ball Park, 8-1.

The "Farmers" showed plainly their fatigue due to their trip to the shore the previous day. They played indifferently and lacked "pep" and were easily defeated. Ashby started on the mound for the Seeds and was pounded hard in the five innings he worked. Sullivan relieved Ashby in the sixth and pitched well. Five of the eight runs scored by the visitors were due to two errors by Heftman, who had an off day in centre field.

Whitlock kept the home team's eight hits well scattered.

NEWTOWN CLINCHES SECOND-HALF CROWN

Newtown clinched the second half race of the Delaware River League over the week-end by winning both of its scheduled games, beating Lambertville, 10-1, Saturday and yesterday, blanking the Morrisville team, 6-0. It was the victories number nine and ten straight for the Burnsmen during the second half race and their sixth straight of the season.

"Chappie" Matthews did the twirling for the Bruins Saturday and held Lambertville scoreless until the final frame when the Top Rock Club pushed over a tally. In this contest, "Eddie" Vandegriff helped Newtown's cause by slamming a home run during a five-run rally in the eighth.

Against Morrisville, it was the veteran Harry Holslaw who chucked them in. Holslaw allowed but two hits and fanned eleven. He issued one pass and hit a batter. It was his tenth straight victory of the Delri circuit and he wasn't beaten during the entire season.

In the other scheduled game, Hulmeville forfeited to Bordentown, 9-0, Saturday.

It is doubtful whether the remainder of the schedule will be finished, it being most likely that the playoff series between Newtown and Bordentown will get under way next week.

committees held a meeting at the home of Burgess R. C. Magill, here, this week and the offer was unanimously accepted.

Plans are already on foot for the grand rally and outing to be held on Saturday, August 29. The delicious snapper supper and other refreshments which made the last outing so popular will be repeated. There will also be a dead-mark target and events will be arranged for the women. This affair will be held at Ely's grove, off Phillips Mill road, and about two miles, of Commerce picnic, held at Washington Crossing, Thursday.

Theodore R. Gardner, Allentown, a candidate for Congress, and Mark Thatcher, Perkaskie, a member of the Bucks County Bar, will be among the speakers. It is expected also that special music will be arranged for the outing.
